PRICE TWO CENTS.

EXPLOSION OF A BOILER.

WILLIAM ROSS, THE ENGINEER, PROBABLY FATALLY INJURED.

Craig & McRoberts's Sand Dredge Destroyed and the Steamer "Aggie" Damaged—The Loss Estimated at $5,000—Several Men More or Less Injured.

The residents along the river near the foot of Lydia avenue were startled out of their homes at an early hour this morning by an explosion on board a dredge boat belonging to the Craig & McRoberts Sand company. By this explosion one man was probably fatally injured, others received bruises and cuts and a loss of $5,000 was caused. The sand company has recently fitted up a dredge boat with new machinery and only yesterday employed the engineer and work was to begin to-day. At 6:15 o'clock this morning William Ross, the engineer, went on board the dredge and built a fire under the boiler. There was no one else on board although a number of men who were to go to work on the boat were rapidly approaching in skiffs. The dredge was tied along side the tug boat "Aggie" belonging to the company, on board of which, at this time, was an engineer, also firing up. Ross, after starting the fire on the dredge boat walked over to the "Aggie," passed the compliments of the morning with the latter's engineer, borrowed some tobacco and returned to the dredge. He noticed that the steam guage registered 60 pounds pressure and that there was plenty of water in the boiler. He then seated himself on a water keg in front of the boiler. He had hardly comfortably adjusted himself to his seat when with a tremendous report the boiler exploded, throwing Ross into the river a distance of twenty-five feet. He rose to the surface and sank again and was going down the third time, when he was seized by Bob Ford, a workman, who had just come upon his skiff. Ross was taken on board the "Aggie" and cared for until the arrival of Mr. McRoberts, who had him taken to the city hospital. He was unconscious but still lived. Both legs were broken, his arms, face, neck and shoulders were covered with cuts and bruises, and he was evidently suffering internally

A colored man and a white man, laborers, had just boarded the "Aggie" at the time of the explosion, and were blown into the river, the colored man receiving severe injuries on the head and breast.

The force of the explosion smashed in the side of the steamer "Aggie" and blew her fifteen feet from the dredge, snapping the cables as if they were but mere threads. The "Aggie's" fireman was rendered unconscious by being struck with a piece of broken timber. A portion of the boiler was blown on the shore a distance of over 100 yards. The dredge was torn in fragments and sank immediately. It is estimated that the damage to the Aggie and the loss of the dredge, boiler and machinery will amount to over $5,000. The Sand company has stated that it is its intention to bear the expense of proper care and medical treatment for Ross and will pay him his regular weekly salary.

Ross is 42 years of age and is not a licensed engineer. He was for some time engineer at the Centropolis hotel. He is separated from his wife who lives at Cincinnati.

Messrs. Craig and McRoberts state that they know no cause for the explosion, if Ross's statement regarding the amount of steam and the amount of water in the boiler at the time are correct, than that the boiler was defective. It was an old boiler, but had been overhauled and was guaranteed to bear 175 pounds steam pressure.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES.

The Preparations About Completed—The Line of March.

A meeting of the Grand Marshal and Aids was held last evening in the office of Mr. E. G. Granville, at the corner Ninth and Wyandotte streets, at which arrangements were perfected for the Memorial day parade, next Monday. The procession will form on Oak street—the right resting on Fourteenth street—and will march at 2:30 o'clock sharp. The route will be west on Fourteenth street to Main, north on Main to Missouri avenue, east to Walnut, and north to the Gillis opera house, where the exercises will be held. The orator of the day at the Gillis will be Judge H. C. McDougal, late of Gallatin, Mo. Mrs. Frank Morgan will read a poem and there will be singing by a select choir. The regular memorial service of the G. A. R. will be conducted by Comrade H. C. Devol, acting as post commander.

At 9 o'clock in the morning the members of the different posts and the ladies' relief corps will assemble at Armory hall, corner of Fifteenth street and Grand avenue. From there they will proceed in street cars and busses to the Union and Elmwood cemeteries, where the graves of the dead heroes will be strewn with flowers.

The usual religious memorial services will be held in the Grand Avenue M. E. church Sunday evening. The members of the G. A. R. will meet in a body at the corner of Eleventh and Main streets, and proceed in a body to the church. The service will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Parsons, who will preach on the subject, "Patriotism."

A Preposterous Proposition.

To the Editor of The Star.

SIR—The application of the Citizens' Cable company for a franchise extending only one-half mile into Westport is a striking illustration of the insolence even a new corporation can display. I doubt the authority of the Westport council to grant such a franchise, and I am reasonably certain that there are members of the council who will not discriminate against an entire community in favor of a corporation. Of course the Holmes street cable franchise to whichever cable company it is given should extend from the northern to the southern limits of Westport. A cable on the half mile which is the outlet of the street will not do. It is absurd to assume that the Westport council is going to cut off all future use of one of its most valuable thoroughfares in order to accommodate a corporation which needs one end of it. It is safe to say that if the Citizens' company does not want all of Holmes street, the Grand Avenue and Metrolitan companies do. If no company now wants a cable line on Holmes street, from the northern to the southern limits of the city of Westport, the proper thing for the council to do is to wait until some company does. So with Troost avenue and Grand avenue companies. If they are granted a franchise to extend their lines it should be to the southern limits of the city.

WESTPORT CITIZEN.

Willingly Accepts His Fate.

James Maher, a laborer from Cedar county, Ia., was in the city, last night, on his way to southern Kansas. He was "seeing the sights" during the night and between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning was stopped at the corner of Fifth and Wyandotte streets by Dell Tyler, colored, who asked him what time it was. Maher pulled out his watch and as he did so the negro grabbed it and ran away. Phil O'Bannon, colored, was standing on the corner and gave chase but the fugitive got away. O'Bannon recognized him and at 6:30 o'clock this morning found him in Sam Jordon's place on Third street, between Main and Walnut streets. He marched Tyler to police headquarters where Maher's watch was found in his possession. Tyler was taken before Justice King and entered a plea of guilty to highway robbery. He was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury. He expressed his intention of pleading guilty and is anxious to begin serving his sentence, which cannot be made less than ten years.

Talk About Kenzie.

Although Kenzie allowed the score of the Denvers to become larger than it should have been yesterday, the management will allow him to remain on the third bag. This seems to be the only place where the nine is weak, but unless Shindle is signed no one better than Kenzie could be procured. Secretary Menges thinks that Kenzie should remain on the team as he is a heavy batter and it is the intention to place him in the field should Shindle arrive.

Y. M. C. A. Secretaries Coming.

A telegram from Mr. F. A. Hatch, dated at Salt Lake City, was received at the Y. M. C. A. headquarters stating that the secretaries returning east from the Y. M. C. A. convention, recently held at San Francisco, would return via Kansas City and spend Sunday in this city.

A gold ring, necklace and chain were stolen last night from O. J. Wilmarth's residence, No. 1518 McGee street.

Charles Smith, 65 years old, died this morning at No. 1421 Main street. The remains were interred to-day at 4 o'clock in Union cemetery.

A lecture will be delivered on the night of Memorial Day, May 30, at Memorial Lutheran church, on "Southern Prisons and Home Again," by Rev. J. H. Zinn, of Pennsylvania.

Z. C. Morris, 51 years old, wife of S. H. Morris, who lives at No. 835 Bellmont street, died last night. The funeral services will be held at the house to-morrow afternoon at 5 o'clock with interment at Oak Grove cemetery.

The parlors of the Second Presbyterian church will be merry this afternoon with the laughter of little children. Miss Nellie Holland gives a private entertainment there for the little ones of the Kindergarten, and those who are privileged to be present will enjoy a rare treat.

The police commissioners and the mayor met at the latter's office, this morning, and Humane Agent J. C. Fulton was found guilty of gross and immoral conduct unbecoming an officer and was discharged. Fulton denied the charges.

At the residence of the bride's parents, 912 Independence avenue, yesterday, Mr. W. H. Webb and Miss Nola Hoover were married by the Rev. Mr. Campbell. The house was full of friends and the presents were numerous. Mr. and Mrs. Webb left at 6 o'clock for East Lynne, where the bride's aunt gave a reception in their honor. THE RECORDER'S DOCKET DECREASES.

He Will Let the Punishment Fit the Crime—A Case in Point.

Only six cases were tried before Recorder Davenport, this morning, and two of the defendants were discharged although they pleaded guilty to drunkenness. Each of them begged for his liberty on the ground that he could not pay a fine and would leave the city if allowed to go. J. A. Thompson was fined $50.50 for selling watered milk. J. B. Jackson for throwing filth in an alley was fined the costs, $1, and Ed. Figamy, charged with careless driving, was also discharged on payment of costs, $2. F. B. Wade was fined $5.50 for intoxication.

The recorder attributes the decrease in his business to his refusal to allow fees for the officers. "If I cut off all the fees," said he, this morning, "I believe we could dispense with the police force."

"What will be your future policy?" a reporter asked him.

"I have no settled policy," he replied. "Each and every case will have to be taken separately and one must put himself in the places of the men charged with offenses in order to look at both sides of a case. One thing is settled and that is that I will endeavor to make the 'punishment fit the crime.' Where I consider the offense trivial I will impose the lightest fine and perhaps only the costs. In regard to nuisance cases, a sanitary officer stated a few days ago that he could not secure a conviction before me. Where it is proven that a person has permitted a nuisance on his premises and made no effort to abate it, I would not hesitate to impose a moderate fine. In cases where the officer sees a nuisance committed and hauls the party up immediately, or when a new comer who is ignorant of our rules happens to be arrested for a trivial offense I should use my judgment as to imposing a light fine. A few days ago a young man who had called on a sick relative was asked to empty a bucket of slop. He did so, and not knowing where the family dumped the garbage, he threw the contents in the alley. A sanitary policeman saw the act and arrested him, but I discharged him. Wasn't I right?"

COLONEL WARDER'S OFFER ACCEPTED.

The Woman's Refuge Association Willing to Combine With the Newsboys' Home.

Mrs. W. S. Brown and Mrs. T. T. Overly, of the board of managers, and Messrs. W. S. Brown, John H. North and T. T. Overly, of the advisory board of the Women's Refuge Hospital, met Colonel Warder in his office this morning to consider his proposition to combine the Women's Refuge with the Newsboys' home. It was unanimously decided to accept the offer, and a meeting of those interested in the welfare of the Women's Refuge will be held at the Y. M. C. A. parlors, Saturday evening, to arrange plans for raising the money to pay a proportional part of the expense. Both the Newsboys' Association and the present Women's Refuge and Maternity Hospital are chartered institutions and as such will enter the new building, each one preserving its separate charter.

It was agreed that it would be for the best interest of the institution that when the title was vested in the nine trustees, a clause should be inserted which would prohibit the trustees from encumbering the Home in any manner and that neither association should sell without the other should become the purchaser.

Mr. J. I. Reynolds, of the wholesale agricultural firm of Trumbull, Reynolds & Allen, has responded to the invitation of Colonel Warder and promised to subscribe one-tenth of the cost of the new building. Mr. Reynolds said to a STAR reporter this morning: "I think the object such a worthy one and Colonel Warder's offer such a liberal one that it should not be permitted to pass by unimproved. I am willing to subscribe one-tenth of the cost of erecting the building provided, of course, the amount is limited. I think $30,000 will erect a building sufficient for the present use. One of the conditions on which I will subscribe is that the women's refuge and newsboys' home be combined, for the present, at least."

River Notes.

The Missouri river is now rapidly rising, having registered 13.1 feet above low water mark at the government gauge. The rise is mainly due to the increased volume of water in the river Kaw. As soon as the snow and ice at the head waters of the Missouri melt the river will begin to rise more rapidly. There is but a slight increase in the depth of the river at Omaha and Nebraska City.

The directors of the St. Louis line of steamers have submitted a proposition to the city council for the projected improvements of the levee at the foot of Delaware street, and as soon as the council passes upon it favorably the levee will be graded, paved and improved so that accommodations may be made for larger steamers which the steamboat company proposes to build and run on their line.

The rise in the Kaw river has sent a volume of water against the southern side of the pest island, which is eating it away. The government engineers think it will not be many years before the entire island will be swept away by erosion.

The Second Grand Jury Report.

The grand jury made their second report to the criminal court to-day, finding indictments against Charles Anderson, for feloniously assaulting Robert H. Thompson on the twenty-third of May last with a knife; William Connell, for assaulting and robbing Charles Fisher on May 22; John Paley, robbery in the first degree; Charles H. Beadford, C. M. Hinst and N. C. Ross for robbery; R. C. Kidd for felonious assault; Paul Burns, for burglarizing the store of Edward Meyers; James Smith, for entering the house of David Makesbury on April 28. The present grand jury has had thus far more witnesses subpœnaed before it than any of its predecessor during an entire sitting.

PERSONAL MENTION.

W. A. Pinkerton, the Chicago detective, is in the city.

Mrs. Carrie Lebrick, of Seventeenth and Summit streets, who has been seriously ill, is improving.

A MANUFACTORY OF FRAMES.

E. P. Scottsford & Co., of Dubuque, Ia., Coming to Kansas City—Will Employ 200 Men.

E. P. Scottsford & Co., of Dubuque, Ia., will remove their frame, sash and window factory to this city, a lot having been purchased by them for the location of the factory in the East Bottoms near E. L. Martin's distillery. They will erect a frame building five stories high, 75x125 feet. They will employ over 200 men when in full operation, and if necessary another building will be erected to meet the emergencies of the business. Mr. Charles E. Hall, the business manager of Scottsford & Co., said to a STAR reporter: "One of the reasons why we come here is that since the passage of the inter-state commerce law we have found that it would be much cheaper to manufacture in some large business center. Our products are not very heavy, but are bulky. All of our logs will be shipped to Council Bluffs and from there floated down the Missouri to this city, thus making a net saving, as compared to the rates levied under the new law of over 35 per cent. Another reason is that the buildings, both frame and brick, in this city, have increased our trade here over 100 per cent. in the last year, We shall do in this city as we have done in Dubuque, made everything pertaining to a house from a window sash to an entire frame house. We have in our employ two architects who are constantly occupied in making designs for frame houses and whenever an individual desires a frame house to be erected for him, we show him our designs and we take the plans and specifications of his own architect, and inside of two weeks we can have every piece of material that enters into its construction prepared and ready to be put together from the foundation beams to the ridge pole."

Mr. Hall was considerably impressed by the value af real estate in and around Kansas City, as he paid as much for the land in the bottoms as he would have done for lots in the business portion of Dubuque. Work on the new building will begin on the first of June, and will be completed before the middle ol the month, as nearly all the material for its construction is already prepared.

THE NEW CENTROPOLIS.

Reopening, After Five Months, Enlarged and Richly Equipped.

The Centropolis hotel, at Fifth street and Grand avenue, opened yesterday, although parts of the house are still unfinished and carpenters and decorators are at work in the office and elsewhere in the building. The Centropolis has been closed since December and, meanwhile, has undergone a transformation which makes it one of the handsomest hotels in the West. Its capacity has been increased from 65 rooms to 225, and the furnishing throughout has been renewed in elaborate style. The wall decorations, the carpets and the furniture have been chosen with unusual taste and care, as well as a disregard of expense, and the fact that everything has been purchased in Kansas City is in a high degree creditable to the local merchants. The chandeliers and gas fixtures are of brass and of uniform pattern; there are numerous bath rooms on each floor; the dining room, finished in hard wood, is of the height of two stories; the elevator, call-bell and fire alarm equipment is of the latest and most effective sort. The handsomest suits of rooms are on the parlor floor, and are named respectively the Red, the Green, the Blue, the Drab and the Terra Cotta rooms, the furnishing being suggestive of the prevailing tint without being obtrusive or glaring in color. Gas and incandescent burners are in every room in the house. Mr. W. S. Saiter, formerly of the Burnett, Cincinnati, is manager of the handsome hotel; Major J. P. Broadwell, treasurer; James Davis, steward; and Charles G. Baird, J. S. Perkins, Harry D. Traber and W. D. Landstreet are in the office.

THE NEW MARKET HOUSE.

A Description of the Plans—A Combination of the Beautiful and Useful.

The plans were drawn up this morning in the superintendent of public buildings' office of the new market house on market square. The building will have the shape of a cross 240 feet long with an extreme width of 95 feet. There are four wings, the middle forty feet wide with a passage in the center of 20 feet. The wings running north and south will be 35 feet wide with 10 foot passage way for pedestrians. Outside each side wing there will be thirty-six fruit and vegetable stands under an ornamental iron roof. These stands will be ten feet square and the roof ten feet high. The fish market, 40x30 feet, will be in the center wing, on Walnut street, with the main entrance on Walnut street. The meat market will also be in the center wing, so arranged that it can be separated from the other markets each afternoon. A brick tower 80 feet high, surmounted by a 30 foot steeple, making a total height of 110 feet, will rise from the center. A stairway will be in the tower, extending up to the meat market inspector's room on the second floor, besides leaving an open court ten feet square for ventilation and light. The whole building will be set on wooden piles, with a concrete and stone floor, stone walls and a slate roof. The sketches were prepared by Mr. Frank Rest, Superintendent Everhart's assistant. The building will be set ten feet back from Walnut street, where the main entrances will be located.

Want to Amend Injunction Petition.

The attorneys for the petitioners in the county court injunction case asked Judge Slover this morning for leave to amend the petition. They contended that the petition should be amended as follows: "That as the order of the county court appropriating money for a court house contained the following condition, 'that if no suitable site was owned by the county for the erection of a court house then the superintendent of the court house should be empowered to select a suitable site,' and inasmuch as the county possessed a suitable site, namely, at the corner of Second and Main streets, it was an unauthorized act on the part of Superintendent Nelson to select any other site." Judge Slover took this motion under advisement.

The case will be tried to-morrow at 9 o'clock.

The Exposition Men Again at Peace.

Among the warranty deeds filed this afternoon was one for $121,065, from James Holmes to James Goodin. This is for the land on which the new exposition will be built. The trouble in the management of the exposition enterprise has been adjusted and Mr. Ryckman has withdrawn his resignation. The work on the excavation was not began yesterday as intended, Mr. Holmes refusing to allow the ground to be broken until the deeds were signed. Work will begin, to-morrow, however, and Mr. Goodin says there will be no further delay.

The gentlemen who are interested in the Shelley Park site will probably decide this evening whether the proposition of the heirs will be accepted or not.

Criminal Court Proceedings.

The case of A. J. Waggoner, charged with murder in the first degree, for the killing of Ed. Springer in Shayne's saloon last fall, has been set for trial in the Circuit court on June 6. The case of the State against Samuel Shaeffer, charged with embezzling money from John I. Blair, was ordered to be tried before J. D. Burgess, a special judge. John Turner, who was associated with Otto Beckman in his assault on Henry Ochs while attempting to impound the latter's cattle, plead guilty to the charge and was fined $100. On motion of his counsel the fine was changed to eleven days in the county jail.

A Panic Among Boarders.

The explosion of a coal oil lamp in the wash room of the Grand Central hotel, on Main street, caused a small fire at 9 o'clock this morning, which was extinguished before the department arrived. The loss was about $100, fully covered by insurance. The fire created a panic among the boarders, many of whom were still in bed when the alarm was given, and rushed out on the street in the free and easy toilet of the night.

ADDING TO THE DEATH LIST

LOSS OF LIFE IN THE PARIS HOLOCAUST GREATER THAN SUPPOSED.

Twenty-five Dead Bodies Thus Far Taken from the Ruins and the Galleries Known to Be Filled With Unrecovered Victims—Searching the Ruins.

PARIS, May 26.—The old Opera Comique was destroyed by fire last night, which broke out while a performance of the opera of "Mignon" was being given. The fire broke out during the first act of the opera in one of the wings from a gas jet and the entire stage was immediately in flames. Fourteen persons who jumped from the windows were killed, forty-three injured, and probably many were crushed to death in the galleries.

The theater was crowded and at the first alarm a rush was made for the exits. The fire spread with fearful rapidity and many persons sprang from the windows to avoid being caught by the flames, only to be dashed to death upon the pavement below. When the fire broke out M. M. Mergmiller, Tasquin and Bernard were upon the stage, and all the performers ran out in their stage costumes. The audience got off easily, but the gas was turned off before all had left the building, and it is feared that some were left in the upper tiers. The roof soon fell in, sending showers of sparks as far as the Palace de la Bourse. With the exception of Madame Tallier, who perished, all the actors escaped though several supernumeraries were injured severely. Five bodies, terribly burnt, were conveyed to the National library. Among them was the body of a woman clasping a little boy in her arms.

Nineteen persons are known to be dead. Many of these are supers. The artificial fire apparatus which had been placed in readiness for the burning of the palace in the second act, rolled down from its place near the roof and exploded below.

The wildest excitement prevailed at this point. Women, half clad, carrying costumes, fled screaming from the stage, many of the chorus having on nothing but their tights. The flames spread so rapidly that in fifteen minutes the stage was a seething furnace. The audience was implored to remain seated until the exits were opened. This they did, displaying remarkable coolness. Had they made a rush for the doors the loss of life would have been appalling.

Upon the outside of the building the police were unable to restrain the crowd, many of whom were wild with anxiety concerning the fate of relatives and friends. One man who wanted to rescue his brother and sister raved, tore his hair, and menaced with a stick the people who stopped him from rushing into the burning building. The falling embers struck horses in the surrounding streets, causing them to plunge and rear. The flames shot out of every window, forcing the crowd into the narrow streets, where the crush was terrific.

A performer says there were 150 persons upon the stage when the fire broke out. The glass fell like hailstones and a column of flame burst through the wings with a roar and all rushed pell mell from the stage.

The gas was turned off too soon, and it is feared this caused many to fail finding the exits, which must have resulted in a great many deaths. Many policemen were injured and four firemen were killed. There was not a frantic rush in the theater, but it is believed the staircase became blocked. The iron curtain was lowered in front of the stage. This prevented the fire from spreading immediately to the auditorium and allowed the audience to escape, Most of the casualties were caused by nervous people. Many persons who were unable to trust themselves to walk the narrow edge of the cornice round the building jumped off in terror. One woman cooly walked all round the cornices, while the flames were bursting above, until she reached the fire escape. The victims were almost all singers. The streets in the vicinity of the burned theater were crowded until an early hour this morning. The doctors attended many persons who have been burned.

Sewell, solicitor of the British embassy, said the audience showed great calmness when the alarm was given when, gas extinguished, he groped his way to the balcony, saw the people in the street laying straw mattresses to receive the persons jumping from the windows. He was ultimately rescued by firemen.

The Havas News agency of Paris places the number of persons killed and injured by the fire in the Opera Comique last night at sixty. The theater was completely destroyed.

It is still unknown how many were unable to escape from the building. Only a fortnight ago M. Steenackers called attention in the chamber of deputies to the dangerous Opera Comique, the oldest theater in Paris.

Figaro also called attention to the same thing after the recent twelve hour benefit performance.

The Dead Lying in Heaps.

PARIS, May 26.—The bodies of ballet dancers, who lost their lives by the burning of the Opera Comique last night, are lying in heaps in the ruins of the theater. The firemen assert that many bodies are lying in the upper galleries. The number of persons killed greatly exceeds previous estimates. An excited crowd has surrounded the ruins, which are guarded by a military cordon.

Twenty Mutilated Bodies.

PARIS, May 26, 2 p. m.—Twenty bodies in a terribly mutilated condition have been recovered from the ruins. The remains are principally those of ballet girls, choristers and machinists. Five of the bodies are those of elderly ladies and one of them part of a child. The firemen are lowering some of the bodies from the fourth story of the theater by means of ropes.

Twenty-five Bodies Recovered.

PARIS, May 26., 4 p. m.—Twenty more bodies were recovered this afternoon from the ruins of the Theatre Comique. Search for the victims still continues.

The remains of three men and two women were found in a stage box where the victims had taken refuge from the flames. It was ascertained that many bodies lie buried in the debris, in the upper galleries, whence escape was exceedingly difficult. The government proposes to close several Paris theaters because of their deficiency in exits. Late this afternoon the bodies of eighteen ladies all in full dress, were found lying together at the bottom of the staircase leading from the second story, These ladies all had escorts to the theatre but no remains of men were found anywhere near where the women were burned to death. The walls of the theatre began falling this evening and search for the bodies had to be abandoned for the day. The library attached to the theatre was entirely destroyed with all its contents including many valuable scenes. Six thousand costumes were burned in the wardrobe.

A DYNAMITE OUTRAGE.

Attempts of Unknown Persons to Murder an Indiana Widow.

VINCENNES, Ind., May 26.—A dynamite bomb was thrown and exploded again the front of Mrs. Frances A. Richey's residence yesterday morning at 3:10 o'clock. A large hole was made in the weatherboarding, the ground was torn and every window in the building shattered.

Mrs. Richey and a 17-year-old son, sleeping in another room, were thrown out of bed by the shock, and the young man was unconscious for a time. The concussion was so great it was heard squares away. Some weeks ago the front of the house was battered with car pins and since that time Mrs. Richey has been in receipt of various threatening letters. Yesterday morning the owner of the house, Mr. Orr, received the following letter through the mail, bearing a special delivery stamp:

"You have had your warning now. It will be worse next time. Put that woman out or I'll send you both to hell."

Similar letters have been received by Mr. Orr before in the same handwriting. On last Sunday night an attempt on the life of Mrs. Richey was also made. Her son George, who was sleeping in the front room heard an object strike against the shutters. He rushed out and found a dynamite cartridge, which he seized hurriedly, cutting off the fuse. Mrs. Richey is a prepossessing widow and a dressmaker by occupation. There are many theories as to the cause of the dynamiting, the one most generally accepted being that it is the work of a female rival. Ten police are doing all they can to hunt down the perpetrators, but thus far they have found no cle.w

SPRINGFIELD, May 26.—Articles of incorporation were filed for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad company in Chicago. The principal office is to be established in Chicago, and the amount of capital stock is to be $10,000,000. The incorporators are: George W. Forest Fires Extinguished.

CHICAGO, May 26.—A special from Marquette, Mich., says: Copious rains all over the peninsula have extinguished the forest fires. The relief fund for the Lake Linden sufferers, including $20,000 appropriated by the legislature, amounts to about $40,000. Outside cities are contributing liberally, but when it is considered that there are 2,000 houseless people, the amount is far short of absolute need.

GOULD, SAGE AND DILLON.

A Gigantic Law Suit to Be the Result of Their Sharp Practices.

NEW YORK, May 26.—A law suit involving several millions of dollars, is about to be commenced against Jay Gould and Russell Sage, as trustees of the consolidated mortgage of the Kansas Pacific railroad, by foreign holders of bonds issued under the mortgage. Certain facts were elicited during the recent examination into the affairs of the Pacific railroads by the United States Pacific railway commission, which have long been suspected by interested parties, but which they were unable to prove. Among the spectators during the examination was William H. Delancy, attorney for Frankfort and Amsterdam holders of Kansas Pacific bonds. The amount involved is $5,000,000. Very sharp work is alleged to have been practiced by Jay Gould, Russell Sage and Sidney Dillon in connection with the consolidation of the Kansas and Union Pacific railways whereby Gould and Sage, who acted as trustees of the consolidated mortgage released from the lien of the mortgage 30,000 shares of Denver Pacific stock at the request of Dillon. A unique law suit was arranged between the three railway kings during which Sidney Dillon testified that the 30,000 shares of Denver Pacific stock were worth but $200,000 or $300,000, though their face value was $3,000,000.

A report was made in accordance with this testimony. The report was confirmed and judgment entered and the $3,000,000 worth of stock released from the lien of the mortgage and transferred to Gould, Sage and Dillon as individuals. The whole lawsuit, involving so large a sum of money, was conceived, commenced and ended inside of a week. On the same day, or the day after the suit was ended and the stock transferred, the consolidation of the Kansas and Union Pacific railroads was consummated and shortly afterward the Denver Pacific stock became worth its face value.

Just what number of bondholders or what amount will join in the present proposed action is not determined, but enough have signified their intention to become parties plaintiff to make it one of the great lawsuits of the day. The total amount of bonds issued under the consolidation mortgage was about $15,000,000, a great many of which were floated in Frankfort and Amsterdam and some in London.

WAS HE INNOCENT?

Facts That Intimate That the Shooting of Vanderburg Was a Horrible Mistake.

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—A special from Rockville, Mo., says: The shooting to death of John Vanderburg in the court room yesterday during his preliminary examination on a charge of outraging Jennie Anderson, is now believed to be a horrible mistake, and notwithstanding the victim of some man's lust identified Vanderburg as the man, her identification was of that uncertainty that usually fixes crime on the first person arrested. Vanderburg was cooking for a camping party four miles from the scene of the outrage at 3 o'clock that afternoon and at 5 he was again in camp. The coroner's jury censured the judge for not disarming and watching relatives from whom something desperate was expected, and they brought in a verdict of murder against Lint Anderson and Ed. Evans. The testimony shows that constables were watching these men, but were thrown off their guard by their composed manner, while the judge was reviewing the testimony.

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 26.—The Texas Press association at its session yesterday took up the report of the committee appointed to secure the modification of the Texas libel law. The report stated that they found it impossible to do anything and asked to be discharged. After discussion of the report the committee was discharged.

Yesterday afternoon they went over the Fort Worth & Rio Grande to the end of the track, thirty-five miles from the city. Friday they go up the Fort Worth & Denver.

A Fighting Editor.

Special Telegram to The Star.

HOUSTON, May 26.—Yesterday Dr. W. O. Langdon, of the Fifth ward, called at the Herald office to interview Mr. Bailey on the subject of a number of articles from his pen accusing the doctor of malpractice on a negro woman, Anna Washington, from the effects of which she died. During the conversation Mr. Bailey slapped his face when a fight ensued. Dr. Langdon finally drew a pistol and Bailey hurriedly took a pistol from a drawer of his desk and attempted to shoot, but was kept from it by the interference of Sheriff Elliot and deputies who were expecting a difficulty. Both men were disarmed. In yesterday evening's issue of the Herald Dr. Langdon is again attacked by Bailey.

It is probable that a duel will end the affair. Mr. Bailey is the editor who was challenged to fight about 18 months ago, by J. F. Watson, one of the managers of the Post. The affair was settled by the seconds of the parties.

Boston Pugilism.

Special Telegram to The Star.

BOSTON, May 26.—A lively eight round fight, between Jack Ashton, of Fall River, and Jimmy Doherty, of Cambridge, took place at the Fair Play club rooms last night. Jack McAuliffe was referee, and Peter McCoy was one of Doherty's seconds. Both men showed a good deal of skill and there was some hard hitting. Ashton did most of the leading all through the fight. He pounded Doherty hard and gave him a very pretty eye. Doherty was a little more clever than Ashton and got in a great many good blows, but did not succeed in punishing his opponent to any extent.

Ashton got first blood in the third round with a straight left hander on Doherty's nose. After that blood flowed freely and at the close of the fight Doherty was badly used up. The referee decided Ashton the winner.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 26.—Col. Len V. Stephen, of Booneville, is in the city. He filed with Attorney General Boone this morning the deeds and abstracts of a title to 163 acres of land for the location of the State reform school for boys. This land cost $15,000, two-thirds of which has been paid by the citizens of Booneville while the state is expected to pay the remaining $5,000. The site is said to be one of the best in the state. It lies just east of the city limits, overlooking the Missouri river, with an excellent view of Howard county on the opposite shore.

The commissioners will meet early next week and take preliminary steps for the erection of the building.

Guilty Bald Knobbers.

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—A special from Ozark, Mo., says: Three of the nine supposed Bald Knobbers arrested Friday last charged with whipping John Swearinger were tried in Ozark yesterday. The other six took a change of venue. In the trial it developed that the two Swearinger brothers and one Williams were barbarously beaten by regulators and three women were visited in the same neighborhood and warned to cease unlawful intimacy with certain prescribed male associates. The Bald Knobbers' defense was shockingly filthy stories about the parties regulated. The verdict of guilty was returned and each were fined $100.

Reported Wreck on the Santa Fe.

Special Telegram to The Star

WINFIELD, Kas., May 26.—The passenger train from the north on the Santa Fe, due in this city at 10:24 yesterday morning, did not arrive until after 2 o'clock p. m. The delay was occasioned by a collision on the line above Wichita. Two trains came together and before they could get flagmen out two extras, one from each direction, piled into the wreck, mixing things in inextricable shape. The details regarding the accident are meagre.

Terrific Gas Explosion.

NEW CUMBERLAND, W. Va., May 26.—In laying gas mains there, it was necessary to heat a pipe in order to make it fit a curve. while this was being done and the pipe was at a white heat some one suddenly turned on the gas. A terrific explosion followed, scattering huge iron mains in all directions. Four Italians, names unknown, were thrown twenty feet by the shock and terribly burned about the face, head and hands. Two children, names unknown, were badly burned. Physicians were summoned from neighboring towns to render assistance.

THE DRILL AT WASHINGTON.

The Toledo Company Wins the Honors of the Day.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The weather was superb to-day, a fair southerly breeze mitigating with clear sunshine and making out-of-door exercise enjoyable. The day was industriously devoted to competitive drilling and the authorities profiting by experience and criticism are making the work very interesting. Seven or eight thousand spectators were in the grand stand of the white lot enclosure, and manifested their pleasure by very liberal and hearty applause. The competing infantry companies were the Governor's Guard, Raleigh, N. C.; Louisiana Rifles, Sarsfield Rifles, New Haven, Conn.; Company C, First New Jersey; Company B, Washington; Light Infantry corps, Toledo; cadets and Company A, Washington; cadets (colored). Company H, Sixth Illinois, was entered for competition, but withdrew on account of the illness of one of its officers. Three competing companies are worthy of especial mention. The Louisiana Rifles appear strong in manual-at-arms. They won, as they deserved, repeated rounds of hearty applause. The Washington light infantry fully equaled them except in the single matter of fixing and unfixing bayonets, while all on line of evolution they distanced all their predecessors. To the Toledo company, however, must be given the highest praise. The enthusiasm ran so high before the end of their half-hour, that the judges and company officers were compelled to demand a cessation of applause, it being difficult for the officers to make their commands audible.

AN INJUNCTION THREATENED.

The City Officials to Be Enjoined from Paying Chief Speers the Extra $1,000.

In a conversation with a STAR reporter this afternoon, Recorder Davenport made some remarks to the effect that an injunction restraining the comptroller and auditor from signing warrants for the $1,000 increase in the salary of Chief Speers would be applied for. "The injunction would stick, too," said he. "The police commissioners have no power to increase the salaries. The legislature gave them the power of fixing the salary at a certain amount and it will require an act of the legislature to give them the power to increase it. I do not think that Andy Thomas or Ben West would sign the warrants, anyway. It is the business of these city officers to see that everything is right and if they consult a lawyer he will tell them that the act of the board in raising the chief's salary is not legal. Therefore they should refuse to sign warrants for the salary increase. You may say that it is not the business of these city officers to know whether or not the ordinances passed by the council are legal, but I say it is. You may rest assured that the chief's salary will not be raised if there is any way to prevent it."

"Who are the leaders in this movement?" queried the reporter.

"That I am not inclined to state," was the reply. "I do not wish to have my name connected with an injunction for that purpose. You will yet see Chief Speers a tame man."

Killed by Lightning.

Special Telegram to The Star.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., May 26.—News reached here yesterday morning of a terrible accident which occurred near Spurgeon, Pike county, late yesterday evening. G. H. McKinney and two sons—Jackson, aged 21, and William, aged 17—were engaged in preparing ground for planting corn, when a storm came up and they took shelter under a shade tree. While the storm was at its worst the lightning struck the tree and instantly killed the youngest of the boys, who was standing about ten feet distant holding a team of mules. The eldest was so seriously shocked that his recovery is very doubtful. One of the mules was also killed.

The Garbage Districting.

The First garbage district, as decided upon by the sanitary committee yesterday, from which garbage is to be removed daily, includes 15½ miles of streets. The district proper, which is bounded on the north by Third street, on the east by McGee, on the south by Twelfth, and on the west by Washington, contains 14½ miles, and Union and St. Louis avenues, in the West Bottoms, add another mile. From the rest of the city, containing perhaps 150 miles of inhabited streets, the garbage will be removed twice a week, making an average of 65 miles a day in all to be visited. The appropriation is $12,000, or about $93 a day for the five months beginning next Thursday.

Terrific Hail Storm.

Special Telegram to The Star.

EUFAULA, I. T., May 26.—A terrific wind and hail storm visited this neighborhood Tuesday night destroying many of the crops and carrying away small houses and fences. For thirty minutes the hail fell in torrents, stripping trees of their fruit and foliage and breaking down the corn and cotton and small grain. Many small animals were killed, and nearly every window on the north side of town was broken. In some places the hail drifted in banks four feet high, and twenty hours after the storm the deposits were two feet high. The loss is fully $15,000.

Rathburne's Arrest at Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Robert Rathburne filed a petition in the circuit court yesterday for a writ or habeas corpus, which the court granted, making it returnable forthwith. Rathburne is held on a telegram from Kansas City charging him with grand larceny. He is, or was, until recently traveling salesman for a Kansas City wholesale jewelry house. He reached here only two weeks ago, accompanied by his young wife, on a visit to his father. It is alleged that Rathburne in company with Louis Wilson and Samuel Harris robbed William F. Hollingsworth, of Kansas City, of $4,000 in government bonds on a train coming to this city.

A Petition Not Sufficiently Signed.

A petition was filed in the city engineer's office to-day petitioning the council to enact an ordinance granting to the Metropolitan street railway company permission to construct its railway on Bell street from Twelfth to Sixteenth streets on Sixteenth street from Bell to Genesee streets and on Genesee street from Twelfth to Sixteenth streets. The petition avers that it is signed by a majority of the property owners, but according to the calculation of the city engineer the petition is still short and needs 150 feet more to have a majority of one foot.

How It Turned Out.

From Drake's Travelers' Magazine.

The Usual Way—"Yes, I gave each of my sons $5,000 and sent them west to make their fortunes. John invested his money in a cattle ranch, and went to work in earnest. It grieves me to say that Henry, disregarding my admonitions about honesty and industry started a faro bank."

"And it all turned out in the usual way, I suppose."

"Yes. Henry owns John's cattle ranch now and has lent him money to come home with."

General Market Summary.

Norton & Worthington furnish the following:

There was a stronger opening on wheat this morning, induced by the repoat that the total export sales at New York to'day had aggregated 41 loads. June opened at 88¼c, crept up gradually to 89⅝c, and then, under a rush of the frightened shorts to cover, spurted to 89⅞c. Here the clique houses became heavy sellers, and there was a sharp reaction to 89c, though it did not break this figure again during the session, closing at 1 p. m. at 89⅛c. Other deliveries were firm and moderately higher, but not so strong as June. Corn was easy and provisions moderately strong.

Estimated receipts of hogs for 24 hours, 24,000. Official yesterday, 21,162; shipments, 4,418; left over, about 7,000, quality good. Market dull and weak prices 5@10c lower, light grades selling at $4.50@4.75; heavy mixed packing, $4.65@4.85; heavy packing and shipping grades, $4.75@5.00.

Yesterday's inspections: Wheat, 202 cars, 2,421 bushels; corn 259; oats, 142; rye, 3; barley, 10. Out—Corn, 306,419 bu.

Estimated receipts to-morrow: Wheat, 237 cars; corn, 290 cars; oats, 203 cars.

One of our New York dispatches says:

The weather and general crop talk this morning was bullish, the public cables were not as good as expected. As a bunch of selling orders struck the early market there was some some easiness in prices, with, however, an undertone of firmness which expressed itself later. Yesterday 231,110 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat were inspected into store against 114,989 bushels out; yesterday's clearances were 101,040 bushels, making 417,769 for three days. Henry Clews & Company bought a good deal of June wheat this morning. Exporters were buyers of option; the crowd was inclined to be bullish; the flour market had an upward tendency, a large amount of June was bought against July, selling this morning. It is believed that J. H. Herrick & Co., and another concern are becoming the depositors of all the June wheat that is sold and that they are working together for more perfect control.

Clearances were; 102,244 bushels of wheat and 82,181 of corn.

Foreign markets closed firm.

Remarkable Case of Fasting.

Special Telegram to The Star.

JACKSON, Tenn., May 26.—There is one of the most remarkable cases of fasting at Medon, this county, known to the medical world. Wm. Murchison has not swallowed food or drink or taken nourishment of any kind or in any way for seventy days. Paralysis of the throat is what prevents him from swallowing. The strange part of it is he is perfectly rational all the time and converses freely about his condition. A number of prominent physicians have visited him, but his case baffles all medical science. It is generally conceded that it is the most remarkable case of fasting known in the world. The victim is becoming very feeble and cannot last many days longer.

Orth Stein's New Start.

EL PASO, Tex., May 26.—Orth Stein, the well known newspaper man, who was arrested in California last September on the charge of forgery and brought to this city where he has since been confined in the county jail, was released yesterday, on a bond of $500, his mother furnishing the names of two citizens who became his bondsmen. Stein looks pale and thin after his confinement. There is sympathy expressed for Stein, as he has announced himself ready for trial on two occasions but the State asked for continuances. Stein has secured a position on the Evening Inter-Republic of this city.

THE publishers of the new directory are enterprising and agreeable in their figures. Their method of taking the census, which is of the most modern style, gives Kansas City a population of one hundred and fifty thousand. This is a gain since the last directory census of sixteen thousand souls, from which it may be inferred that the Malthusian theory does not prevail in the big settlement at the mouth of the Kaw.

WESTPORT will reconsider her late premature extension and undo that work. The old community does not favor extension, but annexation. The people there see that the only hope for Westport being anything at all more than it is now, is for it to become incorporated with Kansas City. When this is done it may participate in the growth and improvements of the metropolis. As a village it can only have a stupid, strangling life, but as part of Kansas City it may share in the benefits of a great city. Annexation is the wise policy for Westport.

NOT much of anything is done now without a system of consolidation. There has just closed at Omaha a combination convention of the cracker makers of the west, including representatives of the cracker interests of Kansas City, Chicago, St. Louis, Council Bluffs and Omaha. The object of the meeting was to combine on a scale of wholesale prices, and the result will be that there will be no decline in the cost of crackers this season. Even the staff of life must pay tribute to combination and not be sold under competition.

IF this city did not favor the Inter-State Commerce law on principle, it might do so on the lower grounds of self-interest. The operations of the law are said to be beneficial to the packing business and stock trade of the city. Our gain is St. Louis's loss. The decision here as to the law, is that it is beneficent. St. Louis may think otherwise since the law has diverted considerable of her grain and stock trade to Kansas City. "Manifest destiny," as well as the Inter-State Commerce law, is in league with Kansas City.

WHATEVER other fate may befall it, the longevity of the special session of the Missouri Legislature is assured. The Senate has passed a resolution giving two weeks, if necessary, for managers of railroads to to appear before the internal improvements committee and testify as to transportation. There have been more than forty railroad bills introduced. These will have to be considered and debated. Whether or not the Legislature will pass a wholesome railroad law remains to be seen, but from present appearances it can be depended upon to use up all the time it can.

AT THE Millers' National association, in session at St. Louis, a resolution was passed favoring the passage by Congress of a bill providing for a national classification of flour and wheat. Such a law might stop or neutralize the mischief now done to grain markets by the miserable mixing system that has been allowed to prevail here to the serious detriment of this city as a grain market. If grain can be classified then the grain of each class will have its market value, and there would then be an incentive for keeping the grade high.

A MUGWUMP IDEA.

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS, in a speech before the Commonwealth Club, announced that he was "certainly not a Democrat and had been disowned by the Republicans;" but he finds comfort in the saying of EMERSON, "even hell has its extreme satisfaction." Referring to the two old parties before the country he said: "The great parties are now only the shadows of great names, and represent no definite and distinct policy upon any of the exciting questions of the day. I think probably there are more Republicans who favor civil service reform than Democrats."

It is true that the two leading political parties are not held together by any leading principles. They are not animated by any great reform movement. Neither party is unqualifiedly the party of free trade or of protection. Neither party dares to repudiate civil service reform principles, and yet in supporting them there is considerable lukewarmness in both parties. The old parties are simply making a chase for office. Mr. CURTIS sees clouds hanging over the two dominant parties. He said: "The Republican prospect is a little clouded by the temperance question, but the Republicans can say to the temperance people: 'If you leave us you leave the best friend you ever had.' But there is also a cloud on the Democratic standard, and that is the labor vote, which cast 68,000 votes for Mayor in New York, virtually displaced the Democratic party in Chicago, and repudiated it in Cincinnati."

The conclusion of Mr. CURTIS's speech is that in the next presidential contest there will be no great question put forward and that the campaign will have to be made largely on the personel of the candidates nominated.

Mr. CURTIS may be correct in his prophecy that there will be no question of importance urged by the two great parties in the next presidential campaign, but he ought to be mistaken. The tariff question, which in its fullest sense means a reduction of the surplus by a reform of the revenue system ought to be a national issue, but both parties will evade the question with characteristic cowardice.

If, then, the choice for the Presidency is to rest upon the personality of the candidates, President CLEVELAND's chances are unassailable for the present. There is a general feeling prevalent that he is in advance of his party, and in official conduct and in political policy is better and wiser than his party. If the Democratic party is wise enough to re-nominate President CLEVELAND, his re-election would be certain. He would receive the Democratic vote, and independent Republicans who admire his administration would vote for him.

The Mugwumps do not care much for the Democratic party, but after a trial they are devoted to President CLEVELAND and his policy and methods, and they believe that he will be the next President. The Mugwumps are probably correct.

RECALL.

"Love me or I am slain!" I cried, and meant
Bitterly true each word. Nights, morns, slipped by,
Moons, circling suns, yet still alive am I;
But shame to me if my best time be spent
On this perverse, blind passion. Are we sent
Upon a planet just to mate and die,
A man no more than some pale butterfly,
That yields his day to nature's sole intent?

Or is my life but Marguerite's ox-eyed flower,
That I should stand and pluck and fling away,
One after one, the petal of each hour,
Like a love-dreamy girl, and only say:
"Loves me," and "Loves me not," and "Loves me"? Nay!
Let the man's mind awake to manhood's power.

READ THE ANSWER IN THE STAR.

READER.—"Who wrote the lines beginning 'Tis sweet to hear the watch dog's honest bark?'" Lord Byron. It occurs in one thousand two hundred and thirtieth stanza cantoi of "Don Juán."

TRAVELER.—"Is it necessary for one traveling in Europe to have a passport?" It is not necessary for a native born citizen traveling in Europe to have a passport, but it is a very great convenience. A passport is like an overcoat in March.

CITIZEN.—"Is Washington's birthday a National holiday?" It is not. Only a dozen States honor the Father of His Country. Congress has no power to make National holidays. The Fourth of July is an universal or common holiday in all the the States, and so is Christmas Day. There are Federal holidays observed in the Territories and District by the army and navy, and in Federal offices, but they cannot cross a State boundary.

AMUSEMENTS.

The National Opera Company at the Coates in "Lohengrin"—Notes.

The principal thing to be regretted about the engagement of the National Opera company is that it was brief. The matinee was not given and the last section of the company did not arrive until almost time far the curtain, which accounts for the rather hurried look and manner of the principals. Mr. Thomas and his orchestra were not put out in the least, however, and handled Wagner's music as they only can.

Myron Whitney was not at his best, and the other principal singers were a trifle disappointing. The opera did not move as smoothly from beginning to end, as the fame of the National Opera company has taught the people to believe it should. "Lakmne" was the opera that the people most desired to hear, but they appreciated the trouble of the company and applauded everything.

To-night Hallen & Hart will change their entire bill at the Ninth Street. The specialty company is the best that has appeared in Kansas City in years.

Mr. French's drama "Montezuma" had another crowded house last night.

Professor Oscar R. Gleason is taming horses at the Gillis in a manner surprising even to the Western cowboy.

Ireland Past.

Passing on to discuss the merits of the Irish Parliament, Lord Rosebery said a second merit of that Irish Parliament was this, that in a time of war it was the stanch ally of the British Government—[cheers]—a stanch ally, and not a source of weakness. Continuing, he said:

"Anything that in my conscience or in my understanding I believe would diminish the power of Great Britain as a Power facing other Powers abroad, I for one would have nothing to do with. [Cheers.] But I know it is said by gentlemen who read no history, and who do not care to read much, because it tells against them, that Ireland with a separate Legislature would be a source of weakness. Let me destroy in this speech at least that one political cobweb with the broom of fact and of experience. What does Mr. Lecky say? 'Nothing is more conspicuous in the history of the Irish Parliament than the discretion with which it abstained from all discussions on foreign policy and the loyalty and zeal with which it invariably supported England in time of war.' I think that is a very nasty nut for our friends to crack. But what are the facts on which Mr. Lecky based this assertion? They are facts which come to us on the illustrious authority of Mr. Burke. Mr. Burke said in 1795, three years after this Parliament had been established, that what was truly astonishing, and he had been a witness of it himself, was that since 1761 she—that is, Ireland—was enabled by her prudent system of economy to keep an army of 24,000, of which 7,000 were sent by her to fight the battles of Britain abroad, while 17,000 remained at home for the defence of the country. She also sent 33,000 recruits, her natives, at her own expense, to fill up regiments in that British service, and spent about £600,000 in Germany in support of the war. This was an effort from which England reaped the greatest advantage, In a patriotic point of view, we were substituting a solid and real union for a sinister, a sham and a hollow sensation. [Cheers.]"

Abhorring Flesh.

From the Philadelphia Times.

Dr. J. Harvey Lovell, of 936 Franklin street, opened his heart and parlor last night and invited the public to his house to hear him read a paper upon "Vegetarianism the Best Remedy for Intemperance."

Dr. Lovell dotes on the fact that he has not tasted a morsel of meat for thirty years, and perhaps this may account for the unusual baldness of his big, round, shining head.

It is the doctor's theory that flesh-eating men have an abnormal taste for drink, and that if men will only confine themselves to vegetable food the desire for drink will be antagonized. "No man," he says, "who eats a pound of macaroni daily will become a drunkard."

The doctor rolled the word nephalism with as much relish as ordinary men masticate a juicy steak. "Nephalism," he explained, "is true temperance, the total abstinence from that which injures and the moderate use of that which benefits."

"What we want," said Dr Lovell after the lecture, "is to establish a temperance vegetarian restaurant, where young men may be banqueted on macaroni, beans and rice. Then we need an organ to disseminate truth."

The society will give a picnic some time in June.

Unreasonable People.

By Bob Burdette.

Down in Pennsylvania last Monday a woman was struck by lightning and stunned for three hours while she was in the act of telling her neighbor how to make a new kind of fruit cake with a pressure of twenty-eight pounds to the square inch that would keep for six months and grow tougher every day. Such things happen right "in our midst," and yet there are people like Bob Ingersoll who deny the existence of a great overruling power that watches over the world and cares for men.

What John Wanted to Know.

From the New York Sun.

A Troy citizen was so ill that his life was despaired of.

"John," said his wife, smoothing his brow, "the doctor is here."

"Is he?" said the patient, feebly. "Ask him if he knows the result of last night's cockfight."

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mr. Charles Hill, who came to the city to attend the funeral of his uncle, the late Dr. Timothy Hill, returned last night to his home in Baltimore.

On June 1 Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Reber, nee Miss Alice Hardcastle, of St. Louis, will remove to their new residence, No. 1332 East Ninth street.

Mr. E. L. Lott has returned to his home in Morriss, Ill., delighted with his visit to Kansas City, and much impressed with all that he has seen here.

The coming Authors' Carnival is occupying the entire time and attention of the ladies who are to be actively engaged in it. Historical costumes are being prepared with great accuracy, and the hairdressers are kept busy, trying to supply the demand for wigs.

Miss Nellie Francisco, who has been enjoying a two weeks' visit with her aunt, Mrs. Catlin, returned yesterday to her home in St. Joseph, delighted with the kindness and hospitality that have been extended to her, and enthusiastic in her praise of Kansas City.

Mrs. P. H. Tiernan gives an entertainment this evening at her residence, No. 1426 Independence avenue, in honor of her guests, the Misses Lindsay, Vallee and Flanagan, three young ladies from St. Louis, which promises to be a delightful affair. Invitations have been issued to about eighty young people.

There will be a quiet home wedding on Thursday, June 2, when Miss Naomi Bietry, a pretty brunette, formerly of New Orleans, is married to Mr. F. C. Lutz, at her mother's residence. Miss Bietry will be attired in a traveling dress, as immediately after the ceremony the bridal party leave for St. Louis. Returning in two weeks they will occupy rooms at the Brunswick until the autumn, when their own house will be in readiness. Miss Viola Bietry accompanies her sister as far as St. Louis, and from thence proceeds to New York, intending to spend the summer in the East.

It is said that the costumes for the National Opera company in "Lohengrin" are worth $40,000. Among those worn last night by Mme Bertha Pierson as Elsa, the handsomest was the wedding dress, in rich gold brocade, covered with most artistic tracery. The pages' costumes, of soft white plush, with the lion rampant, embroidered in tinsel, were particularly admired, while King Henry's robes, especially those worn in the marriage scene, when he appeared in a tunic of red plush, bordered with green silk and applique embroidery, his gauntlets, sleeves and buskins of spangled gold, were pronounced regal indeed.

PEARLINE! PEARLINE!
Good in cold, indispensable in hot weather.

THE VIOLET SLIPPER.

Translated from the French of Arsene Houssaye.

The artist Greuze went to the chateau of Anet with his friend Florian, the poet, to copy the portrait of Diana of Poictiers. One evening, as they were walking in a grove near the fountain, Greuze said to his companion:

"Let us rest here, my friend, for by some chance this spot recalls one of the most charming memories of my youth; but it was a blow which cut me to the heart. I am going to tell it to you, Florian; poet as you are, you will appreciate a pure love story.

"I was then in the bloom of youth and expanding like a flower in the sun. I painted with delight both saints and sinners—everything was a joy to me; and I was madly in love—alas! shall I tell you with whom? The wife of my master!

"She was a beautiful creature that he married near the forest of Vanchese, that land of love and beauty. The first time I saw her, as she entered the atelier, the brushes dropped from my hand; the second time my heart throbbed to suffocation.

Some weeks passed thus, my heart not daring to speak even through my eyes, and except for a violet slipper perhaps I never should have spoken at all.

"Well, one morning I was painting a little Savoyard for the gallery of the Marquis of Hautbois, when she came into the atelier. She was in the simplest but the most charming white deshabille that I ever saw. Her splendid raven hair escaped from her comb in little rebellious curls, and her corsage was only the more attractive for being only slightly fastened. She dragged about with lazy steps a pair of pretty violet slippers, a world too large for her.

"Seemingly absorbed in my painting, I watched her from the corner of my eye with all my soul. She came and bent over me. 'Oh, the pretty Savoyard!' said she, after casting a careless glance upon it. Her shoulder touched mine; her breath stirred my hair. I was about to lose my head, when the voice of my master was heard.

"Eleonore fled like a bird, but her slipper was left on the floor. I threw myself upon it like a madman—it was a talisman of love. I kissed it with the ardor of wild, devouring lips. I was so blinded by my passion that I did not see the little Jeannette—that same little Jeannette who is now the wife of my friend Gretry—enter the atelier. The child surprised to see me kissing her mother's slipper with such madness, ran as fast as her little legs would let her to her father—and thus he learned of my love for Eleonore.

"In the afternoon Jeannette, at the request of her mother, came and asked me for the slipper. 'I have not seen it,' I said.

"The next morning, fearing she would come and search for it, I took the slipper, when I went to take the little Savoyard to the gallery of the Marquis of Hautbois, and carried it to the bottom of the garden, where I hid it in a thick, bushy grove. This one recalls the spot. For a whole month I went every evening to this grove.

"In the meantime the lost slipper annoyed Eleonore. One day at the atelier, as my master was conducting a visitor to the door, she said to me: 'But my slipper, Greuze; where is it?'

"'In the garden of the Marquis,' I answered, trembling; 'will you come and seek it?'

"'You are mad, Greuze,' said she.

One evening, a beautiful evening like this, I was dreaming of joy and love in my beloved garden. Suddenly I heard the shrill voice of the little Jeanuette. Looking through an opening in the leaves I saw Mme. Grondon and her daughter in the pomegranate walk, the daughter bounding on before like a young fawn, the mother sad and pensive like a woman who hides something in her heart.

"She came on toward me like a woman who knew not where she was going.

"Each step of Eleonore struck me to the heart. I seized the little slipper and began covering it with kisses. Mme. Grondon surprised me with my lips upon the slipper; she wished to laugh, to mock me, but touched to the heart by this silent worship, she only smiled sadly.

"'Madame,' I cried, throwing myself at her feet, 'here is your slipper.' She sighed and murmured, 'Come my poor boy, get up and say no more about it.'

"Still speaking, she twined her fingers in my thick blonde hair. I rose from my knees, still kissing her hand; she must have felt hot, burning tears fall there with the kisses.

"'Greuze,' said she, in a choking voice, 'do not love me, for heaven's sake, or all will be lost! I do not love you! No, no; I do not love you—do you hear?'

"'Alas! madame, I know too well that I am nothing to you; but why try to extinguish my love?'

"Eleonore shook her head, sighing. We remained thus for some minutes. At last she raised her head and looked at me with ineffable sweetness. Then I cried, passionately, 'Why don't you love me?'

"At this moment her daughter came running up to us. Her mother turned to her. 'Why do I not love you?' said she, 'there is the answer God has sent me!' and she pointed with her finger to the little Jeannette.

"They left the grove together, and just then the sun—which had been hidden by some purple clouds, threw upon her brow a golden ray which dazzled me—a saintly aureole that recalled the virgins of Raphael. Heaven had come to our help; maternal love triumphed. I bowed my head without a word; my soul arose in silent adoration.

"Eleonore was no longer a woman to me, but an adored image!"

The Religious World.

The next Episcopal Church congress will meet in Louisville, Oct. 18.

The American Bible society has distributed nearly 1,500,000 volumes of the scriptures within a year.

Subscriptions for the new Christian College in Chicago have reached $100,000—enough to begin work on.

The evangelical work begun among the Chicago churches by Mr. Moody is to be kept up during the summer by Major Whittle.

The American Sunday School union, the American Tract Society, the Methodist Book Concern, the American Baptist Publication Society, the Presbyterian Board of Publication, of Home Missions and of Colored and Indian Missions, and the Episcopal Missionary Society all report great prosperity and will celebrate their May anniversaries with gladness.

A Kentucky Family.

From the Kentuckian-Citizen.

Mrs. Frank Smith, aged over 70 years, one of the dozen children of John Chinn, died suddenly Saturday night, May 7, at the residence, on the Bourbon & Harrison line.

The noted New Orleans lawyer, Dick Chinn, was her brother, and the mother of William Tell Coleman, the San Francisco merchant, was her sister. Mr. Coleman recently visited her.

Of her children are Mark Smith, the Congressman from Arizona, and Sam. M. Smith, the New York broker, who married a sister of General W. T. Withers, and Dr. Higgins Smith, of Harrison. Her sister, Mrs. Green Bedford, of Missouri, is the last of the dozen children.

Purposes the New Labor Party.

From John Swinton's Paper.

The foundations of this new party must be laid broad as the continent, deep as human rights. Its principles must be plain, its objects attainable. It must be raised in honor; it must stand for freedom. It must shelter no machine, no bosses, no fetters, no secret juntas, no dark-lantern procedure. It must not tolerate the rule of mercenaries, tricksters, bigots, bulldozers, pharisees, mountebanks, Shylocks, double-faced men, hobby riders, pettifoggers and office hunters.

It seems necessary that these suggestions should be made—and they are not applicable merely to regions far away from New York.

DRAMATIC DRIFT.

It is said that Fay Templeton will return to America and head a huge burlesque opera company.

Mary Anderson has purchased a piece of property in Manchester-by-the-Sea for which she paid $40,000.

That was an interesting bit of correspondence between the Lily and Mr. "Ned" Gilmore that recently came to light. So Mr. Gebhard is a partner to Mrs. Langtry's business enterprises. Pity Mrs. L. don't lie or do something of that sort.

Helen Danvray is greatly interested in base ball matters and has offered a massive silver loving-cup as an emblem of the championship of America, if a meeting of the winners of the league and association races can be brought about.

Next season Hayden, Dickson and Roberts propose to manage Helen Dauvray, J. H. Barnes, Joseph Haworth, Frank Daniels and the following plays: "Snowflake," by Howard Taylor: "The Still Alarm," by Joseph Arthur, and several others.

Genevieve Ward and W. H. Vernon have arrived in London. Miss Ward is at her country house at Shanklin in the Isle of Wight. She will start on a tour of the provincial theatres of England, in company with Mr. Vernon, about the middle of August.

Masini, the Italian tenor, who is now on his way to Buenos Ayres, takes with him his physician, secretary and two valets. He is to sing fifty times, receiving $150,000 for his services, and all expenses, the performances to be given within a period of five months.

POLITICAL.

The Republican press is attacking Theodore Roosevelt because in his "Life of Thomas H. Benton" he spoke slightingly of the high tariff.

According to the Independent, Mr. Blaine's most enthusiastic friends are beginning to realize that his nomination means the defeat of the Republican party.

It is nearly a year since President Cleveland issued the order requiring the trespassers to remove their wire fences from the public lands, but the interior department has had little success in enforcing the requirement.

"Great Britain is the best customer the United States has," says the Democratic Pittsburg Post, and this provokes the Republican St. Paul Pioneer-Press to ask: "Suppose Great Britain should adopt the Pennsylvania tariff system and shut out all American products, what then?"

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is a staple article in the market. The demand for it was never greater than now. The people find it indispensable, and will not be without it at any price. Only costs 25 cts.

THE HOMES OF STATESMEN.

The Magnificent Residences Owned and Occupied by Senators and Congressmen.

A Cleveland Leader correspondent at Washington writes: The homes of public men grow grander as the country grows in wealth. The average statesman to-day is a rich man rather than a poor one, and the boarding-house and statesman's mess of the past is unknown. In the days of Clay, Calhoun, and Webster senators and representatives clubbed together like boys at college, and there were a number of such clubs known as messes scattered throughout Washington. James A. Bayard, the grandfather, I think, of the present Secretary of State, and John Quincy Adams ate in this way at the same table, and Bayard left the mess because Adams put down a record of the table-talk in his diary.

Now each man of prominence owns two or three homes. Secretary Whitney has a house in Washington and a country seat in the suburbs. He has a mansion in New York and keeps up a big establishment at Lenox, Mass. Senator Stanford has three or four houses in different parts of the United States, and he rides from one to another in his special car. Senator Palmer owns a brown-stone front here and another in Detroit. He has a $12,000 log-cabin within four miles of his Michigan home, and he is talking about buying another estate in Florida. Senator Vance has a home on Massachusetts avenue and two in North Carolina. Senator Edmunds owns two houses here and one at Burlington, Vt., and Senator Sherman, though he has a fine house in Washington, has a much more comfortable one at Mansfield, O.

Senator Palmer's Washington house cost him $85,000, and he says the servants have the best rooms in it. Their quarters are at the top of the house, and the kitchen and laundry are in the attic instead of in the basement. The servants have the front rooms in the fourth story, looking out on McPherson square, and they get the best air that goes. The fuel and eatables are brought up in an elevator, and the cooking is done upon a range eight feet long and three feet deep, with as great capacity as those of the kitchens of the White house. The hearth in front of the range is of colored tiles, and the kitchen is heated by steam. At the left of the kitchen is the laundry. It has stationary wash tubs lined with porcelain, and each of these tubs has a single spigot for hot and one for cold water. The rest of the house gets no smell from the cooking, and Senator Palmer tells me that his top-loft kitchen works like a charm.

The whole house is modeled on the same generous plan. It contains in all twenty-five rooms and the elevator that goes from story to story is as big as that of a fair-sized hotel. Each of the chambers is fitted out with fine mantels and grates, and each has a bath-room connected with it. There are nine bath-rooms in this senator's home, and each of its many rooms has a style of its own.

Senator Sherman lives at No. 1319 K street. His house is a four-story brick with stone trimmings. It has a wide hall and generous parlors, over the mantel of one of which rests a fine portrait of the senator. The senator's library is on the second floor. It is a large, well-lighted room, the walls of which are lined with books, and over these are the portraits of distinguished men. The house is worth about $50,000, and it is in the most fashionable part of Washington.

The new home of Senator Edmunds is one of the queer features of Washington architecture. Like the most of the fine houses of the capital, it is made of the warm red pressed brick of Philadelphia, but its construction is such that it looks almost as forbidding and exclusive as does the Vermont senator when he is asked for information about an executive session of the senate. Its entrance is a wide arched door, which seems to have been cut through the heavy brick walls. The windows of the lower story are barred with iron like those of a bank, and at the left of the entrance the carriageway is closed with an iron gate. A curious feature of the house is a copper bay-window, which rises from the second to the third story, and which gives a magnificent out-look over Washington and the surrounding country. The woodwork of the windows is covered with copper of a reddish bronze color, riveted to it by great rivets, the heads of which are as big as trade dollars.

The lower bay window forms a part of the library, and the senator's office is on the ground floor, and back of these iron barred windows Senator Edmunds has a private entrance to his library for his bull dog, and a pair of little stairs lead from the dog's kennel into one of the windows of the second story. The dog can in this way get to the library without passing through the house. The senator's office is finished in pine of a satin whiteness, and it is lined with shelves of the same wood. The house looks better on the inside than on the out, and I doubt not that it is a very comfortable homes It is situated within a block of Blaine's mansion, and within a stone's throw of it flows Rock creek, where Robert Fulton made his first experiment with the steamboat. It is worth, I judge, at least $30,000, and the ground all around it can not be bought for less than $4 a square foot. Edmunds has another home at Burlington, Vt.

Senator Beck also lives in a red brick house, and Senator Eustis, another of the southern millionaires, has a red pressed brick on Massachusetts avenue, not far from that of Edmund E Beck's house is at No. 1486 M street. It is a fine three story structure, fitted out with stained glass and all the modern conveniences. It is well furnished, and the senator does some of his hardest work in it. Bayard lives within a short distance of Beck, and he has another fine residence at his home in Delaware. His Washington home is a dull red brick, topped off with a mansard. A white porch extends in front of it, and over this the vines climb. Its interior is well furnished, and the house has plenty of room in it, though it does not look very large from the outside.

Sam Randall has a little house near the Capitol, which looks as though it might have been made at Philadelphia and carried bodily into the District of Columbia. It is an English basement, pressed brick, with white marble trimmings, and the conventional Philadelphia white marble steps. The hall is narrow, and the house would not bring over $5,000 under the hammer. It has all the Jeffersonian simplicity of Randall about it, and Randall often works away in his study within it in his shirt sleeves. He has a very pleasant home life. His wife runs her sewing machine beside his study table, and she cares more for her little home than she does for the fashionable society of Washington.

A number of the old houses of Washington have been remodeled and are now used by statesmen. Such an one is that of Don Cameron, which is directly across Lafayette park from the Sickles house. Don Cameron's house was owned for years by Ogle Taylor, and Cameron paid $67,000 for it. It is next the old Seward house, which Dollie Madison owned for years after her husband's death. It was a wide, double brick structure, built after the generous style of sixty years ago. The first floor is about level with the ground. A wide front door enters into a broad hall, and at the left as you enter there is a small reception room. The second floor contains the parlors, the dining room and the conservatory. and back of this is an L containing a number of sleeping rooms. Senator Cameron has painted the house, which is now a light yellow. It has balconies in the front and a large yard in the rear. It is well furnished and it now enters on a new era in social life.

Where Wives are Cheap.

From the South African Notes.

I went to call on an African King with a man who knew the proper way to do it. We called in after a long day's shooting, very dirty and tired, to see "the old man." On arriving at a circular mud hut we hitched our horses to a log and walked in. No one was to be seen, so my friend set to work to shout. Fancy shouting for a real live king! Presently a hideous old hag, with a small freehold garden on her, and clothed in an old skin that a London bagman would pass by in disgust, came in and told us that the Chief had been ill all day, but would come out and see us. This meant that he had been as drunk as Chloe for a week past. Soon a blear-eyed, filthy, smelly, disgusting old drunkard came in and sat down on the floor with a grunt. Then he asked for some tobacco. As we had only good tobacco we said we hadn't any. Then he asked for brandy, subsequently for a coat, a pair of trousers, some boots or a hat, and the interview finished up by his trying to sell us a dozen of his wives for a bottle of brandy.

MISSOURI NOTES.

Butler is boring for gas.

The fourth revenue district has been consolidated with the first.

The Mexico Ledger says the boom has thrown off baby cloehes and put on pants.

The Missouri press, by a large majority, is in favor of giving the Fourth of July a rousing celebration.

Springfield proposes to have a free library. A mass meeting has been called to inaugurate a movement for founding one.

The "realm of thought" at Hannibal, according to the Courier, has been "studded with flashing gems from the high school graduates."

Sedalia has an unusual kind of a strike. Strawberry pickers to the number of 40, who have been receiving a cent and a half a quart, struck for an advance of a quarter of a cent.

On Friday Springfield will dedicate the Confederate cemetery. The Southern Historical society of St. Louis will be present on the occasion. Saturday will be "Kentucky Day," and Monday Decoration Day will be observed.

LABOR ITEMS

"Our platform is eight hours at 40 cents an hour and a Saturday pay day," said President Vorkeller of the Bricklayers' union at Chicago, "and we will begin on no other terms."

At Indianapolis the street car strike has finally been taken in hand by the Knights of Labor. The executive committee of district assembly 106 had several interviews with President Johnson during the day and evening, but it was found impossible to reach an adjustment. Mr. Johnson expressed a willingness to grant the minor demands of the men, but declined to concede the advanced pay. The committee, after consultation decided to order out all employes belonging to the Knights of Labor.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE,

Hundreds of bottles prescribed. Dr. C. R. Dake, Belleville, Ill., says: "I have prescribed hundreds of bottles of it. It is of great value in all forms of nervous disease which are accompanied by loss of power."

THE GAYEST CITY.

Glimpses of Paris by One Who Admires Its Brilliancy.

From Louis Henry Drake in the Epoch.

I would rather be the ninety-ninth or the nine hundred and ninety-ninth man in Paris than the first man in any village or town that I have ever seen. They say that good Americans go to Paris when they die. It is much better to go there during life, for there is but little of the spiritual in this brilliant city. We fall in love with Paris at first sight, just as we do a beautiful woman, and do not have to learn to love it as we do Rome. The gay boulevards, the beautiful shops, the stately palaces, the gardens, the wide avenues, the thronged streets, the dashing fiacres, the lovely costumes, all proclaim that this is the center of civilization, the capital of Europe and of the world.

Those who knew Paris under the second empire, when it was the gay capital of the most luxurious court in Europe, say that it is now very dull. But, after Constantinople and Rome, Paris seems exceedingly gay; its gayety and and glitter, however, are more superficial than real, more theatrical than substantial. To the stranger fresh from the east and south of Europe the wide and beautiful boulevards of Paris lined on both sides with carefully clipped trees, and filled with an ever-moving panorama of humanity, offer a scene full of pleasure, excitement and interest.

The traveler in France no longer wonders at the ease with which the French paid the enormous indemnity levied by the Germans after the Franco-Prussian war. Every one is industrious and at work—men and women, boys and girls. You see no men loafing at railroad stations, with their hands in their pockets and pipes in their mouths. All men who are not in the army are engaged in some profitable occupation, and the women are likewise employed. The women enjoy to the full the right to labor. They sweep the public streets and serve as sextons in the churches. It is not an uncommon sight to see a woman traveling take out her knitting and ply her needles during the whole journey. Some of the young girls are very pretty, with their bright faces and dark, sparkling eyes.

Paris is a city of startling contrasts. I have been present at the Madeleine during a wedding; scarcely had the bridal party left the church when a funeral cortege entered, and a coffin was deposited near the altar, where a few minutes before a happy bride had stood. The vestments of the priests, the black clothes of the mourners, and the solemn "De Profundis" were in strange contrast with the music, flowers and tout ensemble of the wedding. The funeral procession passed slowly out of the church, and I lingered before Signol's masterpiece of the "Death of Magdalen" to study the exquisite face of the dying penitent.

Paris has been compared to a theater, filled with gay company, to whom the same grand drama is always being shown. I know that the play has its underplot of poverty and crime, but they shrink from the glare of the footlights and the radiance of the red fire that lights up the scene.

Paris is France politically, but France is not Paris in any other sense. A successful revolution in Paris changes the government of France, but the French people do not become republicans because Paris declares for a republic.

As I stood beneath the majestic dome of Les Invalides and looked down upon the splendid sarcophagus that contains the mortal remains of the first, greatest and most ambitious of the Bonapartes, my mind reverted to the closing scene of that restless life—far from Paris, far from France, far from the French people whom he claimed to love so tenderly, to the distant island where the fierce eagle was chained and made to eat his heart out.

The place to see the French in a state of excitement is at the bourse or stock, exchange. This stately building is on the Place de la Bourse, Rue Vivienne, one of the busiest streets in Paris. The stock brokers—375 in number—meet in the central hall between 1 and 3 o'clock. The public are admitted to a gallery which commands a fine view of what is going on below. The amount of stock gambling daily taking place would astonish the late James Fisk, Jr., or any other Black Friday hero. When a panic sweeps over the money market and stocks tumble rapidly, the excitement reaches a state bordering on frenzy. The roaring of half-crazed men becomes deafening, and pandemonium seems to have been let loose. Then it is that fortunes are lost and won in an hour, and men who entered millionaires go out beggars. Some in despair throw themselves into the Seine, and are found next morning exposed at the morgue.

I know no brighter nor more attractive promenade than the Champs Elysees on a Sunday afternoon between 2 and 6 o'clock. From the garden of the Tuileries to the Arc de Triomphe there is a constant stream of people, all well dressed and well behaved. But the great disappointment to me is that in all that crowd so few beautiful women are seen. They are graceful, they dress exquisitely, they have a fascinating vivacity, but they are not what would be called even pretty in America.

After passing the Arc de Triomphe, the Avenue des Champs Elysees leads off to the famous drive of the Bois de Boulogne. Here French life is seen in all its gayety and brilliancy, and very Frenchy indeed are the sights witnessed in this splendid drive. First comes the beautiful barouche of a princess, a foreign embassador's handsome turnout is eclipsed by the stunning equippage of the last successful speculator on the bourse, or some American millioniare fresh from Wall street.

One of the vast halls of the Louvre is devoted to historical curiosities of all kinds from the prayer-book of Marie de Medici to the words of captains and kings made famous in the history of the world.

Several immense galleries are devoted to Egyptian works of art. Here is a whole wilderness of mummies, kings, queens, and common people, all retaining a wonderful lifelike appearance 3,000 years after their souls have been wandering on the banks of the Styx. Its wonderful galleries are loaded with objects of interest and curiosity, going back to the very twilight of history and running up through all ages and all countries. I must not omit to mention the pride of the Louvre, the gem of the vast collection of art treasures—the Venus de Milo, which stands all alone in its armless beauty, one of the rarest relics of ancient sculpture.

The inner phase of French life is not seen by the traveler who spends a few weeks in the gay capital stopping at the Grand hotel or Meurice's, who spends his mornings on the brilliant boulevards, his afternoons in the Bois de Boulogne, and his evenings at the opera. The French life which is revealed to the generality of strangers is shallow, superficial, soulless. But that feverish life of the Bois, the boulevards, and the opera is very different from the real life of the French people. Yet it is this which passes for the real life of the French, by which as a people they are judged, for which as a nation they are condemned.

How an Actress Dresses.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

"A good deal of interest," said Miss Eastlake, cooly, "has been excited by my gowns in that play, and curiosity expressed as to how I arrived at such effects. My wig is copied from a statue in the British Museum, and I went there to study for my costumes, and they are archæologically correct.

"First, I wear silk tights that come up to my arms and fasten over the shoulders; then there are three India silk petticoats that fasten on the inner side of the peplum. The India silk is the finest made and is almost as light as gauze. To give you a conception of the exquisite thinness and softness of it, the drapery alone that I wear is sixteen yards in length and four yards wide, and yet when I sit down it falls around me so pliantly that every part of my figure is sharply outlined."

THE GREAT FRENCH WARRIOR.

The Modern French Estimate of Napoleon Bonaparte.

From Scribner's Monthly.

It has not been difficult of late years to collect contemporary prints of the First Napoleon. It may have been otherwise under the Second Empire—probably it was—but since the establishment of the Third Republic it has been easy enough. The history of Napoleon's prestige in France may be told in a few words.

Napoleon's personal force was so great, and he had so identified himself with France, that, in spite of the reaction consequent on the Restoration of Louis XVIII., the French people, as a whole, accepted him and glorified him as the national hero. His fame, and the magical influence of his name, suffered little even from the recollections of Leipsic and Waterloo; his reputation, in fact, increased steadily all through the period of the rule of the returned Bourbons, and at no time was more potent than in the reign of Louis Philippe. In his day Napoleon's remains were brought back from St. Helena, and interred, with great pomp, in the Invalides. The shops of Paris were full of pictures of his battles, of portraits of him and of his marshals. Up to the Revolution of 1848 Napoleon's government and policy were always in the popular mind, opposed to the policy and government of the Bourbons. He stood for the principle of the national will; they—the older branch, of course, more particularly—for the principle of divine right. After the deposition of Louis Philippe, the tremendous influence of Napoleon's name carried Prince Louis into the chair of the President of the new Republic by an overwhelming majority, in spite of everything the government could do to prevent it. But from that moment a new chapter began, Napoleon was now no longer, in the minds of the French people, placed in contrast with the Bourbon kings, but with the Republic. The coup d' etat of Dec 2, 1851, embittered the Republicans against the uncle almost as much as against the nephew, for it was by the uncle's name that the nephew had won. Hence came a systematic effort to write down the First Napoleon, with a view of weakening the hold of the Third Napoleon upon the popular mind. Lanfrey's history is the best illustration of a work of this kind. The fall of the Second empire, with all its mortifying incidents and terrible disasters, did much—however illogically—to lower the prestige of Napoleon the First; and since 1871 Republicans and Bonapartists have been always at swords' points. In France to-day whatever may be in fact the strength of the veneration felt for the First Napoleon, one sees and hears little of him. There are, of course, many prints, busts, medals, statuettes of him to be found in the shops, but they are not so highly prized, I fancy, to-day as they were forty years ago.

May the Clergy Be Criticised?

Professor Huxley in Popular Monthly.

The Duke of Argyll tells us that the "work and calling" of the clergy prevent them from "pursuing disputation as others can." I wonder if his Grace ever reads the so-called religious newspapers? It is not an occupation which I should commend to any one who wishes to employ his time profitably; but a very short devotion to this exercise will suffice to convince him that the "pursuit of disputation," carried to a degree of acrimony and vehemence unsurpassed in lay controversies, seems to be found quite compatible with the "work and calling" of a remarkably large number of the clergy.

Finally, it appears to me that nothing can be in worse taste than the assumption that a body of English gentlemen can, by any possibility, desire that immunity from criticism which the Duke of Argyll claims for them. Nothing would be more personally offensive to me than the supposition that I shirked criticism, just or unjust, of any lecture I ever gave. I should be utterly ashamed of myself if, when I stood up as an instructor of others, I had not taken every pains to assure myelf of the truth of that which I was about to say; and I should feel myself bound to be even more careful with a popular assembly, who would take me more or less on trust, than with an audience of competent and critical experts.

I decline to assume that the standard of morality, in these matters, is lower among the clergy than it is among scientific men. I refuse to think that the priest who stands up before a congregation as the minister and interpreter of the Divinity is less careful in his utterances, less ready to meet adverse comment, than the layman who comes before his audience as the minister and interpreter of Nature. Yet what should we think of the man of science who, when his ignorance or his carelessness was exposed, whined about the want of delicacy of his critics, or pleaded his "work and calling" as a reason for being let alone?

No man, nor any body of men, is good enough, or wise enough, to dispense with the tonic of criticism. Nothing has done more harm to the clergy than the practice, too common among laymen, of regarding them, when in the pulpit, as a sort of chartered libertines, whose divagations are not to be taken seriously. And I am well assured that the distinguished divine, to whom the sermon is attributed, is the last person who would desire to avail himself of the dishonoring protection which has been superfluously thrown over him.

London is a Big Town.

From St. Nicholas.

If any one were to walk one way through all the streets of London, he would be obliged to go a distance of 2,600 miles, or as far as it is across the American continent from New York to San Francisco. In our approach to this city, as well as in our rambles through its streets, we shall not be struck so much by its splendid and imposing appearance as by its immensity. Go where we may, there seems to be no end of the town. It is fourteen miles one way, and eight the other, and contains a population of nearly four million people, which is greater, indeed, than that of Switzerland or the kingdoms of Denmark and Greece combined. We are told on good authority that there are more Scotchmen in London than in Edinburgh, more Irishmen than in Dublin and more Jews than in Palestine, with foreigners from all parts of the world, including a great number of Americans. Yet there are so many Englishmen in London that one is not likely to notice the presence of these people of other nations.

This vast body of citizens eat every year 400,000 oxen, 1,500,000 sheep, 8,000,000 chickens and game birds, not to speak of calves, hogs, and different kinds of fish. They consume 500,000,000 oysters, which, although it seems like a large number, would only give, if equally divided among all the people, one oyster every third day to each person. There are 300,000 servants in London, enough people to make a large city; but as this gives only one servant to each dozen citizens, it is quite evident that a great many of the people must wait on themselves.

No Reciprocity Without Annexation.

From the New York Tribune.

It is a serious mistake for American legislators or journals to encourage the provinces to hope for commercial without political union. Those provinces demand all the commercial advantages which they would have if they were incorporated as States in the American Union, and many of their public men fancy that reciprocity will be granted again, as it has been in the past, from an excess of generosity and good nature on the part of American legislators. Importunate applicants like Mr. Welsh need to be reminded that annexation and reciprocity are not to be divorced, and that the commercial and political advantages of union are irrevocably bound together.

SPRAYS OF SPORT.

The Denvers, the champions of last season, were taught how to play ball at League Park yesterday afternoon. The Cowboys defeated them by a score of 12 to 8, and which would have been still more one sided had it not been for costly errors by Kinzie at third base. The following is the score:

Denver..............1 2 1 0 3 1 0 0 0— 8

Earned runs—Kansas City, 4; Denver, 1.
Two base hits—J. Manning, Lillie, Hassamear, McKeon.
Three base hits—Smith, McSorley.
First base on balls—McKeon, J. Manning, Hasamear, Mansell, T. Manning, McSorley, Hogan.

Passed balls—Mappis, 2, Briggs, 3.
Wild pitch—Hogan.
Double plays—Lillie and Manning, J. Manning, T. Manning and McKeon.
Umpire—M. Hurley.
Time of game—2 hours 15 minutes.

The scores of the Western league yesterday: Leavenworth, 11; Omaha, 6; St. Joe 16, Lincoln, 9. The Association scores yesterday were: Baltimore, 13, Cleveland, 7; Athletics, 5, Cincinnati, 4; St. Louis, 10, Metropolitans, 3; Louisville, 5, Brooklyn, 4. Chicago played Boston yesterday and the score resulted 4 to 2 in favor of the latter.

At the Latonia track yesterday the favorites had their own way, winning four out of five races. The winners were War Sign, Cruise, Clarion, Jacobin, Unite.

The English derby excited more interest all over the country than any race of the season. An outsider won the race, but the race was satisfactory to a great many of the betters:

A capital start was made, Porcelain and the Shannon colt first showing in advance, with Aintree and Eridespord following and The Baron and Merry Hampton coming next. Porcelain soon dropped back, but the Shannon colt kept the lead, while Martley was last. At the mile post Eridespord drew up and ran level with the Shannon colt and was joined directly after by Blanchland, Grandison and The Baron. The place was too hot for the Shannon colt and he gave way. Aintree was now at the tail of the string, and Blanchland and Eridespord were three lengths ahead of The Baron and Merry Hampton. Merry Hampton was too fast. On entering the straight Cannon rode The Baron vigorously, and Blanchland and Eridespord fell back beaten. Merry Hampton then took the lead with Martley and Aintoee heading the others. The Baron ran with the utmost gameness, but failed to reach Merry Hampton, who won by four lengths, with Martley two lengths behind The Baron. Aintree finished fourth and Eridespord fifth. The Shannon colt came in last. There were eleven starters.

A FAILURE.

Beneath this frank and smiling face,
You who would look with curious eye
The draughtsman's inward mind to spy,
Some other lineaments may trace.
Ah! many a time I try and try,
Lady, to represent thy grace.

Dear face! The smile with which 'tis lit,
The mantling blush, the gentle eyes,
Each individual feature lies
Within my heart so faithful writ.
Why fails my pencil when it tries?

I look upon the altered line
And think it ever is my lot;
A something always comes to blot
And mar my impossible design—
A mocking Fate that bids me pine,
And struggle and achieve it not.

Poor baulked endeavors incomplete!
Poor feeble sketch the world to show,
While the marred truth lurks lost below!
What's life but this? a cancelled sheet,
A laugh disguising a defeat!
Let's tear and laugh and own it so.

Poor old Esquimaux Joe, guide and interpreter for many ill-fated Arctic expeditions, is dead. After all of his heroic adventurers he died in the common place.

The residuary estate of Samuel J. Tilden is estimated to be worth $5,000,000. It is to be applied towards buying and maintaining a free library for which his will made provision. Mr. Tilden did not live for himself alone.

Ohio has over five thousand unmarked soldiers' graves. It is proposed that the state take charge of them, see that they are marked as soldiers' graves and appropriately decorated annually. Such a service is worthy of the people.

John Rusken is thought to be insane because he has kindled a fire with one of his books. If a good many other people would only kindle a fire with their manuscripts before publication, it would be regarded as the sanest act of their lives.

A new book just out is entitled, "Was Shakspeare Shapleigh?" A glossary will be needed at once for a title word. It is singular that one who writes so straightforward and direct should be given up to so many mysterious entanglements by the critics.

They have heard of the "grand old man" out in California and have named a town Gladstone, in his honor. This man's fame fills the civilized world and shines everywhere with honor, and he is an exception to the rule: A man is not without honor save in his own country.

It is announced that Mrs. Beckwith, wife of Bishop Beckwith, of Georgia, who recently died, was the great-grand-daughter of George Washington's mother's sister. One has to take a long look down the corridors of time to get back at the starting point of such a protracted genealogy.

Fairchild, the new secretary of the treasury, is a young man, being only 45. The scale of youth has been moved up, so that a man who lives decently is not considered old before he has reached the age of 65 or 70. The human heart is never old so long as one has hope and faces forward. Old age comes with the backward look and dead and dying hopes.

The communion table on which George Washington partook of the sacrament the Sunday before his death has been restored to the church at Alexandria, where he was accustomed to attend. "The father of his country" never showed much indignation at the sins of the world. There was none of the fanatical element about him, and he was a regular attendant at church. He was a man who averaged will.

The audacious Jennie C. Clafflin must be preparing to become an angel. The following description is given of her in a New York paper: "Lady Cook, formerly Jennie C. Clafflin, of New York, has almost the face of a religious recluse, without the slightest expression of a woman of the world. Her eyes are a cold steely blue, and she looks to be about forty-five years of age. Her husband is a linen draper, knighted while in some municipal office."

Ingersoll in the Blasphemy Case.

From the Chicago Tribune.

Colonel Ingersoll examined every juror as soon as presented. Presbyterians had a rather hard time of it with the examiner. After twenty men had been examined and the defense had exercised five of its peremptory challenges the jury was sworn. On it were two Methodists, four Catholics, five whose religion was not asked, and one with no religious views. "The question at issue in this trial," Colonel Ingersoll said, "is whether in New Jersey a man has a right to free expression of honest thought. If you had let this man alone the diameter of his echo would have been 100 or 200 feet. Your course has made his mission more discussed than anything else could have done. Fifty millions of people will hear of this trial." Colonel Ingersoll took up the statute governing such a case. Then he quoted from the state constitution to show that the statute could not stand, as the constitution declared that no person should ever be denied any civil right on account of religious principles, and that no laws could be passed to abridge liberty of speech or the freedom of the press. "This cowardly law was passed," he said, "when men didn't dare argue. Talking of protecting the Bible by statute! Did any one ever think of protecting Shakspeare for fear he would be laughed at? Does Burns need protection? Is there any danger of Euclid being laughed at in this neighborhood? Must you have a statute to keep Almighty God from ridicule? England put Darwin's sacred dust in Westminster Abbey. If he had lived in New Jersey he would have spent a year in the penitentiary." The case will be finished to-morrow.

A Practical Test of Beer.

From the Toronto World.

The question whether Cronk beer is intoxicating has at last been unmistakably decided in one of the hamlots of Muskoka. Two of the denizens of that region, after imbibing freely of the mild beverage, were so overpowered in the darkness of night with loyalty to the jubilee year that they decided to plant a tree as a mark of their affection to their sovereign. The tree was planted, but next morning the citizens were amazed by seeing a stately maple with its branches in the ground and the roots in the air. The police magistrate will in future rule that Cronk beer is within his jurisdiction.

TO-MORROW: Slightly warmer, generally fair weather; light variable winds.

To-morrow we'll let you have them, and we're tempted to believe there will be no hesitation in your taking them. We are speaking of those German Chenille Curtains. See the six display windows full; use your eyes and knowledge of Curtains to an advantage; take note of their size, colorings, designs, styles, quality; read all the cards, two especially. "400 pairs of these curtains at $8.50 a pair, worth $13.50 to $22.50." Another: "Look! Look! German Chenille Curtains only $8.50, worth $13.50 to $22.50."

The pressing demand for these goods forced this sale; the way we bought them forced this terrible cut in the prices.

You'll find them in Carpet department.

A short time ago Hecht Bros., the largest importers of Fans and Fancy Goods in New York City, had a fire. The salvage was sold by the Underwriters May 13.

We bought about $6,000 worth of Fans at this big auction sale at something like a third and a fourth of the actual cost—that is, for a dollar fan we gave 33 1/3c, in some cases; in others only 25c. We were more than pleased with this purchase.

The goods are now here and we're going over the lots. They look even better than they did in New York.

As soon as we can get them assorted there will be a sample line put in the display windows. That will tell the story.

There are 3,862 pieces in all, worth from 50c to $10. Some of these are damaged by water, others by fire, others have the plumage crushed, and still others have only the box, in which they were packed, smoked.

We cannot say too much for them; we ask you to expect a great deal. Look for the biggest bargains in Fans you ever saw or heard of and we will not disappoint you.

To give you an idea of how we're going to sell them: Here's an elaborate hand-painted Gauze Fan with Lace ornamentations, the regular retail price of which is $12.50, that we mark $3.75. A hand-painted Satin Fan, worth $4.50, for $1.50. Another Decorated Gauze, worth $5, for $1.95. Plain Black Satin, feather tip, retail price $3.50, now marked $1.50. Polished olive stick, Ostrich Feather Fan, worth $6.75, for $2.87.

Such is the way we will mark them. About the date of the sale we'll let you know later. Enough for you to know at present is that this is a matter which concerns every one of you who has use for a fan.

The demand for Dresses ready made is great; the supply unlimited. Our stock is replenished every few days by express from New York. We aim to give the newest procurable styles; and as we have no old stock in warm weather dresses, you get the choice of fresh goods.

Come in the morning if you can. Having increased our alteration force we deliver dresses on very short notice. Strangers in the city can almost always have their dress purchases the same day unless bought too late in the afternoon.

White Dresses, Sateen Dresses, Lace Dresses, Cloth Dresses, Silk Dresses, Figured Mohair Dresses—plenty of all kinds. Alterations correct.

In the Circuit Court of Jackson county, at Kansas City, Missouri, April term, A. D., 1887. Kansas City & Wyandotte Railway and Tunnel Company, plaintiff, against J. Lindley Coates, Arthur C. Coates, Laura Reed, Homer Reed, her husband, and J. Lindley Coates and Edward H. Webster, executors of the estate of Kersey Coates, deceased, Charles F. Pitkin, James M. Pitkin, Ives W. Pitkin, Dwight F. Pitkin, and Prescott H. Pitkin, and J. Lindley Coates, Arthur C. Coates, Laura Reed and Sarah W. Coates, trustee for Charles F. Pitkin, James M. Pitkin, Ives W. Pitkin and Prescott H. Pitkin, defendants.

To the above named defendant, Charles F. Pitkin: You are hereby notified that on the 4th day of May, 1887, the above named plaintiffs filed a petition in the above entitled cause to condemn lot 6, block No. 3 in Lucas place, in the City of Kansas, in Jackson county, Missouri, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating its line of railway over, along and across said lot, and praying that the court order and direct the appointment of three disinterested freeholders as commissioners to assess damages which the defendants, or any of them, may sustain in consequence of the establishment, erection and maintenance of the railroad of the plaintiff over said lot, and which petition also alleges that the plaintiff is a railroad corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, and with authority to construct, maintain and operate a double track railroad along and over said lot, and that all of said lot would be required by said plaintiffs, that the title to said lot was formerly vested in fee simple in one Helen Pitkin, and that on or about Dec. 19, 1879, she conveyed the said lot to Kersey Coates in trust for herself and her children with power in said Coates, or his successors in said trust, to sell the same and invest the proceeds for the benefit of herself and children, which deed was filed for record in the records of deeds of Jackson County, Missouri, on the 19th day of December, 1879, in record book 38, at page 231; that said Helen Pitkin and her daughter, Louisa C. Pitkin, have since departed this life, leaving the defendants, Charles F. Pitkin, James M. Pitkin, Ives W. Pitkin, Dwight F. Pitkin and Prescott H. Pitkin, as their heirs and only heirs at law; that said Kersey Coates died in April, 1887, after he had accepted said trust and without having executed the same; that the legal title to said lot is now vested in defendants, J. Lindley Coates, Arthur C. Coates, Laura Reed and Sarah W. Coates, the heirs and devisees of said Kersey Coates in trust for the defendants, Charles F. Pitdin, James M. Pitkin, Ives W. Pitkin, Dwight F. Pitkin and Prescott H. Pitkin, according to the trust created by the said deed of said Helen Pitkin; and that plaintiff cannot agree with defendants, who are residents of Missouri, as to the compensation to be paid for said lot; and, whereas, the said Circuit court on May 4th, 1887, ordered this notice to be published, as provided by law, in THE EVENING STAR, a newspaper published in said county.

Now, you are notified unless you appear and defend said petition, and show cause why the prayer thereof shall not be granted at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of Saturday, June 4th, 1887, the said petition will be taken as true, and the prayer thereof granted.

Witness, my hand and the seal of said Circuit court, this 4th day of May, 1887. L. F. McCOY, Clerk.
